However, what people wear can also convey a message about who they are and their role in society. For Example, visit nearly any country in the world and you will notice that young people everywhere are wearing fashionable blue jeans, not for work, but for social occasions such as parties and concerts. The jeans are somewhat of an index of how these young people view themselves: I'm modern and stylish. I'm relaxed and confident. I'm different from the traditional older generation. Jeans make such an important statement that, in some groups, a person might be judged by the brand of jeans he or she is wearing. As a result, some young people feel pressured into spending hundreds of dollars to acquire a single pair of designer jeans just to be in fashion. 61. What is the main idea of the passage?  a. People's clothing says a great deal of information about them.  b. A young person might spend a few dollars to acquire a pair of designer jeans.  c. It's important for young people to wear clothes that are in style.  d. Designers differentiate between clothing for young people and older people. 62. The word "acquire" in line 9 is the closest in meaning to -----.  a. gain                      b. express                      c. plug                      d. roll 63. Which sentence is correct?  a. Clothing serves many functions beyond just protecting our bodies.  b. People put on clothes just to protect their bodies.  c. People don't send messages about themselves via what they wear.  d. It's unimportant for young people to wear clothes that are in style. 64. In some communities, a person might be judged by the brand of jeans he or she is putting on.  True – False

You can find the names of colors in a lot of English expressions. Many of these expressions, however, talk about colors in very different ways. For example, the color red is often used to talk about things that are hot or exciting. You can listen to red-hot jazz music or eat red-hot chili peppers. If you roll out the red carpet for someone, you are giving them a big welcome. On TV, you may see stars walking on the red carpet at the opening night of a Hollywood movie or at the Academy Awards. After a big night like this, the stars often paint the town red, which means that they celebrate and have fun, going to parties or nightclubs all over the town. However, red isn't always fun.

If you do something embarrassing, like spill coffee on your teacher's desk, perhaps your face is beet-red. Your teacher's face might be red with anger, too! Or if you see a person doing something bad on purpose, like taking someone's wallet, you can say that you caught the person red-handed. Whether it's good or bad, red usually means something interesting is happening.

65. Is red color always used to talk about hot or exciting things?
66. According to the passage, if your face is red, it can mean you are -----.

Many countries now think that cars that burn fossil fuels should be replaced by electric cars. Electric cars don't burn gasoline in an engine, so they don't pollute the air. They use electricity stored on the car in batteries. Sometimes, 12 or 24 batteries, or more, are needed to power the car. Just like a remote-controlled car, an electric car has an electric motor that turns the wheels and a battery to run the motor. Electricity, the same energy that lights your lamps and runs your TV, is stored in batteries on an electric car. The batteries can be like the ones you find in flashlights or in regular gasoline cars. To get the battery ready to roll, you have to charge it. This process isn't much different from the way you charge the portable devices you carry around every day: your cell phone, MP3 player, or digital camera. The difference is that you deal with a much bigger gadget that carries you around instead. The electric car is usually plugged in at night. The car can be plugged into a special charging unit even at houses. Some electric cars can be plugged right into a regular electrical wall outlet. Others need a larger outlet, like the kind that a store or a vacuum cleaner plugs into. The engineers are trying to make better batteries that hold more energy and last longer. To overcome the problem of charging electric cars, hybrid cars are also available. Hybrid cars combine the benefits of gasoline engines and electric motors. They can be designed to meet different goals, such as better fuel economy or more power.

Energy is ability to do work. It can take a variety of forms: Mechanical, electrical, chemical, and nuclear. To produce any type of energy, the resources of the earth are used. The main resources of the earth are fossil fuels such as gas, oil, and coal.

We get most of our energy from these fossil fuels, but this is harmful to the environment. Fossil fuels are nonrenewable and cannot be replaced easily. Once we use them up, they are gone forever. They are not clean as they pollute water or air.

In recent years, scientists try to use other types of energy resources. They call them clean energy resources because they do not pollute the earth. Clean energy is renewable. It is made from resources that can be replaced like wind, water, sunshine, tides and plants. When renewable energy resources are used, the demand for fossil fuels is reduced.

The most common type of clean energy is the solar power. Solar energy is produced by the radiation that reaches the earth. People have used the sun as a heat source for thousands of years. Nowadays, solar energy can be changed into other forms of energy, such as heat and electricity. Therefore, fewer fossil fuels are consumed each year and they are saved for the future generation.

- 1 One custom to reflect people's history and values is the way they greet each other. There is a wide range of greetings around the world. These range from the common handshake to other strange customs in some countries. Let's take a look at how the simple action of greeting someone varies greatly from place to place.
- 2 In the United States and Canada, for example, simple handshake or nod (moving your head up and down) is the norm. The handshake has an interesting origin: It started long ago as a way of showing people that you weren't carrying a weapon (eg. a knife or gun). Shaking the person's right hand while looking him or her in the eye is the usual method. Handshakes are also common in other parts of the world, including Britain and Russia. In Russia, men grasp other men's hands very strongly during the handshake. In New Zealand people also greet each other with a handshake. However, the native Maori people of that country display more physical contact; they press their noses together as a sign of trust and closeness.
- 3 In other countries, such as France and Belgium, hugging and kissing are more common when two people meet. In those cultures, people kiss each other on the cheeks. The number of times varies depending on the particular country. In Saudi Arabia, men might hug and kiss each other (but not a woman) on the cheek. Men will also shake hands with other men there. In some Eastern countries, including Korea and Japan, bowing is the traditional greeting. In Japan, if your bow is deeper, you show deeper respect. The strangest custom, however, is likely in Tibet. People there choose to stick out tongue to greet others.

However, what people wear can also convey a message about who they are and their role in society. For Example, visit nearly any country in the world and you will notice that young people everywhere are wearing fashionable blue jeans, not for work, but for social occasions such as parties and concerts. The jeans are somewhat of an index of how these young people view themselves: I'm modern and stylish. I'm relaxed and confident. I'm different from the traditional older generation. Jeans make such an important statement that, in some groups, a person might be judged by the brand of jeans he or she is wearing. As a result, some young people feel pressured into spending hundreds of dollars to acquire a single pair of designer jeans just to be in fashion. 61. You can find the names of colors in a lot of English expressions. Many of these expressions, however, talk about colors in very different ways. For example, the color red is often used to talk about things that are hot or exciting. You can listen to red-hot jazz music or eat red-hot chili peppers. If you roll out the red carpet for someone, you are giving them a big welcome. On TV, you may see stars walking on the red carpet at the opening night of a Hollywood movie or at the Academy Awards. After a big night like this, the stars often paint the town red, which means that they celebrate and have fun, going to parties or nightclubs all over the town. However, red isn't always fun.

If you do something embarrassing, like spill coffee on your teacher's desk, perhaps your face is beet-red. Your teacher's face might be red with anger, too! Or if you see a person doing something bad on purpose, like taking someone's wallet, you can say that you caught the person red-handed. Whether it's good or bad, red usually means something interesting is happening.

Many countries now think that cars that burn fossil fuels should be replaced by electric cars. Electric cars don't burn gasoline in an engine, so they don't pollute the air. They use electricity stored on the car in batteries. Sometimes, 12 or 24 batteries, or more, are needed to power the car. Just like a remote-controlled car, an electric car has an electric motor that turns the wheels and a battery to run the motor. Electricity, the same energy that lights your lamps and runs your TV, is stored in batteries on an electric car. The batteries can be like the ones you find in flashlights or in regular gasoline cars. To get the battery ready to roll, you have to charge it. This process isn't much different from the way you charge the portable devices you carry around every day: your cell phone, MP3 player, or digital camera. The difference is that you deal with a much bigger gadget that carries you around instead. The electric car is usually plugged in at night. The car can be plugged into a special charging unit even at houses. Some electric cars can be plugged right into a regular electrical wall outlet. Others need a larger outlet, like the kind that a store or a vacuum cleaner plugs into. The engineers are trying to make better batteries that hold more energy and last longer. To overcome the problem of charging electric cars, hybrid cars are also available. Hybrid cars combine the benefits of gasoline engines and electric motors. They can be designed to meet different goals, such as better fuel economy or more power.
